

Today, all of Glenwood Landing had the opportunity to speak and work with poet Darren Sardelli! Then, in a workshop, Kindergarteners collaborated to create the hilarious poem below. We had a great time!

I like apples.
Apples are crunchy.
Apples are juicy.
I eat them for lunch-y.

Apples are red
like a big fire truck.
They don't hug people
or quack like a duck.

Hot apple pie and fresh apple cider
they're made for kindergartners
but not for a spider.

I'm looking forward to many more poems to come!

Sincerely,
Mrs. Smith

His name is Mr. Silly.
His house is made of cheese.
The pool inside his tree house
is filled with vanilla peas.

The hats upon his shoulders
have rainbow googily eyes.
He has a barking hot dog
that chases talking pies.

He fishes with a fishing pole
that has a French fry hook.
Thank goodness he's just a character
in this hilarious, crazy book!

I'm looking forward to many more poems to come!

Sincerely,
Mrs. Smith

Today, all of Glenwood Landing had the opportunity to speak and work with poet Darren Sardelli! Then, in a workshop, second graders collaborated to create the hilarious poem below. We had a great time!

My pets are amazing.
My gorilla can fly.
My polar bear sings
while baking pumpkin pie.

My elephant jumps
100 feet in the sky.
I have a fast turtle
with a polka dot tie.

My secret agent penguin
has a rainbow laser eye.
This silly rhyme is finished.
It's time to say, "goodbye!"

I'm looking forward to many more poems to come!

Sincerely,
Mrs. Smith

Today, all of Glenwood Landing had the opportunity to speak and work with poet Darren Sardelli! Then, in a workshop, third graders collaborated to create the hilarious poem below. We had a great time!

I live on a planet where zebras are pink.
Pumpkins have powers that make grandmas shrink.
Giraffes play gold trumpets on lollipop grass.
Babies can waddle as fast as "The Flash."
Marshmallow monsters have licorice hair.
Hippos dance disco with a moon walking bear.

Kittens in opera in a hot air balloon
I love being a character in this wacky cartoon.

I'm looking forward to many more poems to come!

Sincerely,
Mrs. Smith

Today, all of Glenwood Landing had the opportunity to speak and work with poet Darren Sardelli! Then, in a workshop, fourth graders collaborated to create the hilarious poem below. We had a great time!

The Animal Olympics were outrageous AND unique.

An octopus sold bacon in a squirrel-shaped boutique.

A unicorn was skating with a panda on its back.

Sloths were crawling slowly under hurdles on a track.

A hippo did a back flip on a tic-tac trampoline,
while crocodiles did cartwheels on a twisting laser beam.

The chickens wearing platform shoes were “dynamite” AND “groovy.”

This scene took place last Tuesday in an animated, 3D movie.

I'm looking forward to many more poems to come!

Sincerely, Mrs. Smith

Today, all of Glenwood Landing had the opportunity to speak and work with poet Darren Sardelli! Then, in a workshop, fifth graders collaborated to create the hilarious poem below. We had a great time!

Our haunted school is scary and cruel.
There's headless custodians and a mad scientist ghoul.
The cats in the coat rooms have glowing, green eyes.
Lunch ladies lie about what's in their pies.
Man-eating lockers are roaming the halls.
Skeleton art is displayed on the walls.
Our art teacher molded some skulls out of clay.
These were just a few scenes in the CREW Halloween play!

I'm looking forward to many more poems to come!

Sincerely, Mrs. Smith
